On Solitude

Hail, modest Solitude, instructive maid,
Still to thy votary, still vouchsafe thine aid
Still imp my soul with meditation's wings,
And lead me far from modern trifling things.
Before my view bid ages past unfold, 5

And let me mingle with the great of old.
With kings and heroes, saints and sages stray,
And let their converse cheat the devious way.

Behold, already to my joyful eyes,
From various realms the mighty shades arise; 10

Who once the bulwark of their country stood,
And, to be great, determin'd to be good.

Great too in crimes another race I view,
For all was great that former ages knew.
In Aristides just see Athens' pride; 15

See the brave Theban, who at Leuctra dy'd.
With him th' unwearied partner of his wars,
Looks up elate and glories in his fears.

There moves the father of the Grecian state,
Whose name Thermopylae hath snatch'd from fate; 20

And yet an endless train to these succeeds,
The chief who conquers and the sage who bleeds,
Rome's awful names now crowd upon my mind,
Her first great Brutus, glory of mankind,
The voice of nature dying in his ear, 25

The voice of Rome alone he knew to hear;
There leans Horatius on his darling boy,
And smiles superior with a Roman joy,
The Fabii, Decii, see, and o'er the rest,
Great Cato towards, the wisest and the best, 30

Cato, the last of Romans, and the pride,
Cato

, who never errâ€™d, but when he dyâ€™d.

Behind the sons of glorious mischief press,
Whose deeds can plead no merit but success;

Young Ammon, Caesar, there with gesture proud, Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â 35
Drink the mad plaudit of the ruinâ€™d crowd.

But who are these of later times, I ween,
Of equal worth that crowd the shifting scene?

My soul presaging knows the kindred line,
Ye Henrys, Edwards, yes, I call ye mine. Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â 40
Â Â Â Â

Each look, each smile, some pleasing thought conveys,
Of tyrants humbled on victorious days,

When Edward, Henry, and his son appears,
I start to Cressy, Agincourt, Poitiers,
And later yet, behold a virgin sway Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â 45
Â Â Â Â

Fair Albionâ€™s sceptre, and the world obey,
Yet, yet, one more, a mother, wife, and queen,
Oâ€™er vanquishâ€™d nations looks with placid mien,

Imperial Anna; yes, thy name shall stand,
The grace, the pride, the glory of our land, Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â 50
Â

Not Rome, nor Greece, nor antient times disdain,
To mix their honours with great Annaâ€™s reign.

Thrice happy, Britain! if thy favourâ€™d throne,
Still in a monarch had a parent known,
No wretch, who bold perverse and haughty still Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â 55
Made his will law, and not our laws his will.

Yet let no murmurs rise, since heavâ€™n presides,
Since all our fortunes boundless wisdom guides:

As guilt uncheckâ€™d would call for burning rain,
Or bid some deluge drown the world again, Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â 60
Â

Tyrantâ€™s must rise, the nationâ€™s iron rod,
The scourge of vengeance in the hand of God.

Thus good and bad by turns appear to view,
The bad how many, and the good how few:
But tyrants soon in penal chains shall groan, Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â Â 65
Â

And injurâ€™d kings possess a lasting throne.

Â 2 votâ€™ry Votary, âœœa devoted or zealous worshipperâ€™(QED); vouchsafe âœœConfer or bestowâ€™(QED).

Â 15 Aristides just Aristides the Just (fl. 5th century BC), an Athenian statesman, general, and founder of the Delian Leagueâ€™(Britannica).

16 *the brave Theban, who at Leuctra dy*TM Probably a reference to Epaminondas, a Theban statesman who defeated Sparta at the Battle of Leuctra and made Thebes the most powerful state in Greece. However, Epaminondas did not die at Leuctra, but at Mantinea years later (Britannica).

19 the father of the Grecian state Probably a reference to Leonidas I (d. 480 BC), a Spartan king who led a stand against the Persian army at the pass of Thermopylae (Britannica).

24 Brutus Lucius Junius Brutus (fl. 600-551 BC) was a semilegendary figure believed to have founded the Roman Republic (Britannica).

27 Horatius Horatius Cocles (6th century or legendary hero) who defended the Sublician bridge (in Rome) against the entire Etruscan army (Britannica).

29 Fabii, Decii Ancient Roman patrician and plebeian families, famous for their patriotic courage and sacrifice (Britannica).

30 Great Cato Marcus Porcius Cato (95-46 BC), a Roman senator who tried to preserve the Roman republic against power seekers, in particular Julius Caesar (Britannica).

35 Ammon Egyptian deity who was revered as king of the gods (Britannica); Caesar Possible reference to Roman dictator Caius Julius Caesar, though the word can also refer to all Roman emperors down to the fall of Constantinople (QED).

36 plaudit Applause, or any emphatic expression of approval (QED).

37 ween To think, surmise, suppose (QED).

39 presaging To foretell; to predict, forecast (QED).

40 Henrys, Edwards Likely a general reference to the past kings of England. At the time of this poem's publication, fourteen English monarchs had borne the name Henry or Edward (Historic UK).

43 Edward Edward III (1312-1377, reigned from 1327, began the Hundred Years War and oversaw English victories at Crecy and Poitiers; Henry, and his son appears Most likely references Henry IV (1367-1413), reigned from 1399, and Henry V (1386-1422), reigned from 1413, defeated the French at Agincourt and would have succeeded to the French throne had he not died prematurely of dysentery (Historic UK).

44 Cressy, Agincourt, Poitiers Battles between English and French forces during the Hundred Years War that resulted in English victories (Britannica).

45 behold a virgin sway Reference to Queen Elizabeth I (1533-1603), reigned from 1558, known as the Virgin Queen (Britannica).

46 Albion's Originally: the island of Britain. Later: the nation of Britain or England, often with reference to past times, or to a romanticized concept of the nation (QED).

49 Imperial Anna Queen Anne (1665-1714), reigned from 1702; she was the last Stuart Monarch (Britannica).

59 burning rain Biblical reference to the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah from the Book of Genesis: "Then the Lord rained upon Sodom and upon Gomorrah brimstone and fire from the Lord out of heaven" (King James Bible, Genesis 19:24).

60 some deluge drown the world again Reference to "the biblical account of the Deluge" from the Book of Genesis, in which God destroys the world with a catastrophic flood (Britannica).
