

Alexander Pennecuik, “The Trial of the Muir-Cock”

Description

ALEXANDER PENNECUIK

“The Trial of the Muir-Cock”

Judges, of old, amongst the feather'd flock,
A diet held to try this mad muir-cock,
Who stood indicted by a learn'd gormaw,
The eagle's advocate and flisk of law:
His crimes were very great and very gross, 5
Enough to sink the muir, and blast the moss,

INDICTMENT.

Muir-Cock, you stand accus'd of being a cheat,
Using bad means to purchase drink and meat;
Though you was early consecrate a priest, 10
Sham'd godly birds, and turn'd a drunken beast.
Deny'd the eagle's title to the crown;
And from two rich well feather'd nests pull'd down;
Was stigmatiz'd before the high sanhedrim,
But their correction made you grow more slim. 15
Of late you laid a most pernicious plot,
For liquor to your all devouring throat;
By hellish arts your purpose brought about,
Marry'd a simple bird to your suspected pout:
Though she were virtuous, still it would be said, 20
She had a pimping, though a preaching dad:
Which being prov'd by verdict of assize,
The pannel's either banished or dies.
The jury gave a formidable stroke,
And sentence thus went out against the cock. 25

THE SENTENCE.

Muir-cock, for this high aggravated crime,
We banish you into a foreign clime.
Gled, take him to the peak of Teneriff,
There nail his foot; and to augment his grief, 30
Set drink at distance from him for a mock,
Till vultures wonder and devour the COCK.

NOTES:

- 2 diet “A day fixed for a particular meeting or assembly (Scottish)” (OED).
- 3 gormaw “The cormorant” (Dictionaries of the Scots Language).
- 22 assize “The jury (Scottish)” (OED).
- 23 pannel “The accused” (Dictionaries of the Scots Language).
- 29 Gled “The common kite” (Dictionaries of the Scots Language); the peak of Teneriff Mt. Teide, a volcano on Tenerife, the largest island of Spain’s Canary Islands.

SOURCE: A Collection of Scots Poems on Several Occasions (Edinburgh, 1769), pp. 48-49. [Google Books]

Edited by Daisy Downie